

Winds of Change in the Galilee

Exhibit Opening & Reception Details

Monday, October 18, 2011

5:30 PM – 7:30 PM

MIT Rotch Library, 7-238

77 Mass Ave, Cambridge

Guest speakers:

Prof Yohanan Arzi, President, ORT Braude College | Shlomi Schwartzberg, Curator

A Window to My World is an annual photography competition open to all residents of Israel and the Galilee region. The theme of the 2011 competition is Winds of Change in the Galilee. In recent years, the Galilee region has undergone many changes that find expression in all spheres: social, cultural, technological, and ecological, as well as in various projects and initiatives. Participating in this contest were 64 Arab and Jewish photographers from a broad spectrum of ages and from all parts of the country.

The ORT Braude College which stands in the heart of the Galilee in Carmiel attributes great importance to the development of the Galilee by its encouragement and support for the changes occurring in the region in various spheres and has therefore chosen to give its patronage to this project.

Free and open to the public | Light refreshments provided